

The Cistercian Informer

Volume 47 | Issue 3

www.CistercianInformer.com

At the beginning of the 2016 Presidential race, one woman seemed to loom over the GOP. That, of course, was former secretary of state, Hillary Clinton. While the candidates of the Republican Party duked it out with Clinton, a dark horse arrived hot on the heels of the Democratic poll leader: Bernie Sanders, the independent senator from Vermont, had entered the fray.

“I got into politics not to figure out how to become president. I got into politics because I give a damn,” Sanders tweeted shortly after the most recent democratic debate.

This sentiment perfectly displays the sincerity of his campaign. Agree with him or not, it's hard to deny that Bernie Sanders genuinely cares about this country we call home. He's bluntly honest in his ideas and has almost never wavered in these throughout his long voting record. He carries a thick, Brooklyn accent, is unashamed of his Jewish upbringing, and believes that the citizens, not major corporations and banks, should run America.

For the rest of the article, go to www.CistercianInformer.com

Recent Articles:

- News: Bern, Baby, Bern!
- Career Profile: The Life of a Journalist (Tim Rogers, '88)
- College Profile: Rice University
- The Nest: Who is Greg Brownderville?
- Sports: Holiday recap for Football and Basketball

BY THE NUMBERS

Percentage of Republicans supporting Trump

29%

Percentage of those with a brain

0%

Number of DC and Marvel Movies coming out 2016

8

Percentage of freshmen parents upset with their son's GPA

95%

Reasons why this Informer Preview is late

1